Info about the training:

No matter how prepared and experienced youth workers are, they all, sooner or later encounter a crisis situation in their work. It can be something that happens while working on a local level with young people, in a youth center or on the street. Or, it can be while organizing international projects and while working with young people that we just met for the first time during that project. Youth workers are often not prepared for these situations and they are not sure how to deal with what is happening. This can affect negatively their reaction and the young people with whom they work. On a long term, if they don't have the resilience developed, and crisis situations happen few times, it can lead to professional burnout and youth
