WHAT IS SONGS FOR RIGHTS?

UNLOCK THE POWER OF MUSIC AND HUMAN RIGHTS EDUCATION WITH SONGS FOR RIGHTS!

Are you looking for a way to promote human rights through music? Songs for Rights offers a unique approach to human rights education that combines the power of music and the principles of human rights. We believe that human rights education is essential for creating a world where everyone's dignity and rights are respected and protected, and that music is a great medium to facilitate this.

Through our Songs for Rights Training, we provide you with the knowledge, attitudes, and skills to educate others about human rights using music as the main tool. Our workshops go beyond just discussing the contents of human rights documents, encouraging reflection upon attitudes and actions needed for change. By producing songs, video clips, concerts, and other events, we can use music to advocate and promote human rights in a fun and engaging way.

Our flexible methods allow trainers to tailor their workshops to the needs and experiences of their participants, making it relevant and engaging for everyone involved. By using music as a tool, we create emotional appeal and sustainable internalization, providing a form of expression that inspires and empowers.

"Join us in the movement to promote human rights through music!"

With our unique approach, we work towards a society that upholds the fundamental pillars of non-discrimination, inclusion, participation, and transparency. Such a method can be used to effectively support, empower and educate a wide range of target groups and topics, such as human rights, children's rights, women's rights, refugees' rights or the rights of people with disabilities.

By learning the Songs for Rights methodology, you will discover how to facilitate workshops for groups to express themselves through music, writing, composing and recording their own songs and make a difference in the world. Start your journey towards human rights education and register for our training today!

THE SONGS FOR RIGHTS METHODOLOGY

While all our workshops, trainings, and learning materials are tailor-made and adapted to the specific target group, the Songs for Rights methodology is based on the LACPA approach. The following represents the 5 typical steps of a Song for Rights workshop or training:

L - LEARN

Learning about human rights, key principles, and international conventions on human rights using musical activities, exercises and games.

A - ASSIMILATE

Internalizing the meaning and importance of Human Rights in our lives by analyzing and discussing which aspects of Human Rights play an important role in our countries, communities and close environment.

C - CREATE

Writing and composing a human rights song based on the learning from the previous steps and the emotional connections we have built towards the topic and the group.

P - PRODUCE

Recording the song in a studio, or using DIY and low-tech tools, and the production of a music video.

A - ADVOCATE

Promoting human rights through different channels and actions using the produced song & video.

THIS TRAINING IS FOR YOU,

IF YOU ARE

passionate about promoting human rights through music and want to empower others with the same knowledge, our training is perfect for you. Whether you're an experienced trainer or new to the field, we'll equip you with the knowledge, attitudes, and skills needed to educate others about human rights using musical methods.

Our training is designed for musicians, human rights activists, educators, teachers, youth workers, social workers, trainers, and life-long learners who want to use their musical skills for a greater purpose.

WE INVITE YOU!

- educators
- teachers
- youth workers
- social workers
- musicians
- human rights activists
- trainers and life-long learners

Whatever your background, our only requirement is that participants should already have some musical skills or can play an instrument.

WHAT WILL YOU LEARN?

In this training, you'll discover the innovative Songs for Rights LACPA approach - an effective method for learning, assimilating, creating, producing, and advocating for human rights through the art of music.

MORE CONCRETELY YOU WILL:

- Discover the Songs for Rights LACPA method for human rights education through music
- Learn and apply the five essential Songs for Rights principles (PIJEQ) of participation, inspiration, joy, empowerment, and quality
- Explore a range of musical activities, exercises, games, and energisers for diverse target groups
- Gain skills in writing, composing, and recording songs that tackle pressing social issues
- Learn how to produce your own music video and advocate for human rights through music
- Set up, organize, manage, and facilitate your own Songs for Rights workshops
- Use music to engage with people and bring about positive social change

LEARNING MODULES

The training is hands-on, interactive and praxis-oriented. Participants gain knowledge through online coaching (one before the training and one after), 4 intensive training days at the Landesmusikakademie Berlin and training material in the form of a toolkit and video tutorials.

To foster learning, you will go through a wide range of activities and exercises in the role of workshop participant, as well as facilitator, and will get feed-back from the trainers. You will also write, compose and record your own song during the training.

Topics you will explore include understanding human rights and their principles, identifying human rights violations in your country, community, or school, learning how to write and compose songs about human rights issues, recording and producing music videos, and tips and tricks for setting up and running Songs for Rights workshops.
