This TC is intended for youth workers and other professionals who have previous experience in local youth work activities, and are starting to implement educational activities in the fields of STEM education and digital entrepreneurship.

What will the tc look like?

By introducing participants to the foundations of STEM and digital work opportunities such as virtual assistance, no-code programming, and self-employment in the digital space, this training goes beyond traditional learning. It aims to empower youth workers and educators to foster innovation, adaptability, and practical knowledge among young people, preparing them for the changing labour market. Through team building, career exploration, and the development of follow-up activities, this course encourages youth workers to create impactful educational opportunities that truly make a difference and empower young people to further explore digital work opportunities.

The training course is developed in line with Youth Goal 7: Quality Employment for All and contributes to:

1. Ensuring equal opportunities for all young people to develop the necessary skills and gain practical experience in order to smoothen the transition from education to the labour market.
2. Ensure equal access to quality information and adequate support mechanisms to prepare young people for the changing labour market and future of work.

The training course will be based on non-formal education and learning-by-doing methods. The first days of the training are dedicated to getting to know participants and team building, and understanding foundations of STEM and career exploration. Days 3 and 4 offer participants insights into different digital work opportunities: from virtual assistance to no-code programming and self-employment in digital environment. On the day 5 of the training course, participants will have a chance to jointly plan follow-up activities to be organised in their local communities.

By the end of the training course, participants are expected to improve their personal understanding, knowledge and skills about foundations of STEM and different career opportunities in the fields of digital entrepreneurship and self-employability.

Objectives

- To develop understanding and knowledge about STEM education and career exploration based on the STEM educational approach.
- To develop knowledge of participants about different digital work opportunities; including virtual assistance, no-code programming, self-employment, and digital entrepreneurship.
- To develop follow-up educational activities focused on promoting digital work opportunities among youth.
