This TC is intended for youth workers and other professionals who have previous experience in local youth work activities, and are starting to develop and implement their first campaigns focused on prevention of hate speech and discrimination.

What will the tc look like?

Through exploring the realities of hate speech and discrimination in various contexts, participants will gain a deeper understanding of how these issues impact young people. The course introduces practical approaches for developing social and online campaigns, encouraging participants to design initiatives that promote inclusion, equality, and resilience. By engaging in activities such as team building, campaign planning, and knowledge sharing, youth workers will enhance their skills to develop innovative and engaging campaigns for prevention of hate speech and discrimination.

This training moves beyond traditional learning by combining research-based exploration, creative problem-solving, and collaborative action planning. Participants will be empowered to develop follow-up campaigns and activities that enable young people to combat online hate speech, advocate for social change, and build resilient communities. The course aims to inspire youth workers to create meaningful educational opportunities that contribute to a more inclusive and equitable local communities.

The training course is developed in line with Youth Goal 2: Equality of All Genders, and contributes to:

1. Achieving universal awareness of gender-based inequality and discrimination, particularly in the media.
2. Ending gender-based violence by addressing and tackling it effectively in all its forms.

The training course will be based on non-formal education and learning-by-doing methods

By the end of the training course, participants are expected to enhance their knowledge, skills, and confidence in addressing hate speech, designing campaigns, and supporting young people in creating impactful social change.

Objectives

- To develop an understanding and knowledge of youth workers about hate speech, discrimination, and strategies for addressing them through interactive youth campaigns.
- To share different examples from national and international levels in regards to hate speech and discrimination, and campaigns against hate speech and discrimination.
- To develop skills and empower youth workers to design and lead effective social and online campaigns.
- To enhance participants' understanding of the Erasmus+ program, Youthpass, and the recognition of learning through 8 key competences.

Participants are expected to attend the full duration of the TC
