

Subject: Partner Search – Reviving the Traditional Marching Band Culture of Amasya (UNESCO IFCD Application)

Dear Colleagues,

My name is Kübra Tiryaki, and I work as a Project Consultant at the Strategy Development Department of Amasya Municipality, located in the Black Sea Region of Türkiye. Amasya is a historical city with a rich tradition of municipal marching bands that dates back 161 years.

To preserve this cultural heritage and pass it on to younger generations, we are preparing a project to apply to the UNESCO International Fund for Cultural Diversity (IFCD). The project will include music training workshops for youth and an international band gathering in Amasya.

We are looking for international partners—especially those working in the fields of music, youth, cultural heritage, and diversity—to co-develop and implement this inspiring initiative. We would be pleased to organize an online meeting to explore potential collaboration opportunities and share project details.

If you are interested, please feel free to contact us via the details below:
