Project Summary

Echoes of Hate is a Training Course that responds to a critical psychological crisis in the youth field: the rapid escalation of digital lynch campaigns and organized hate speech fueled by structured information disorders. While traditional media literacy projects focus solely on technical fact-checking, they completely ignore the human cost. Today, young activists, leaders, and vulnerable groups are systematically targeted, leading to severe mental breakdowns, social isolation, and tragic consequences. Youth workers lack the psychological and pedagogical tools to manage these digital crises and build cyber-resilience on the ground.

- Applied competences in tracking digital manipulation, deploying psychological first aid for targeted youth, and mastering gamified non-formal education methodologies.
- Gamified simulation sprints, live crisis-management case studies, and peer-to-peer co-creation.
- An open-source, co-created "Echoes of Hate Booklet" consisting of 4 strategic modules: Digital Fact-Checking Tools, Psychological First Aid Mechanisms, Gamified Non-Formal Workshop Designs, and Dissemination Frameworks.
- Partners commit to recording and broadcasting a localized podcast series in their home countries.

What We Seek

- Mutual partnership and active intellectual collaboration
- Participants aged between 20–25
- Focus on media literacy, digital youth work, or psychosociological support
- Recording and broadcasting a localized podcast series
- Direct local implementation of the co-created booklet's workshops inside youth communities
- Mandatory participation in a 2-day Advance Planning Visit preceding the mobility
