Project Summary

Climate change is a complex political reality shaping the future of youth. While global summits like COP31 define macro strategies, youth workers lack concrete advocacy tools to translate decisions into local action. This project empowers youth workers to become active policy advocates in green employment and eco-certification.

To achieve this, the project focuses on four core actions:

- Organizing an Advanced Planning Visit to align partnership strategies, research tasks, and logistic frameworks before the main mobility.
- Training youth workers on climate diplomacy and European Green Deal frameworks through practical simulations.
- Co-creating a Handbook analyzing past environmental crises and youth participation in decision-making.
- Drafting a Strategic Policy Paper with concrete recommendations on green jobs and eco-certification.

What We Seek

- Full commitment to mutual partnership across all project stages
- Active participants aged between 20 and 25 years old
- Youth workers with a background in policy, sustainability, or advocacy
- Sharing existing institutional data, studies, or gaps regarding this topic
- Completion of pre-mobility research on national environmental policies
- Strong capacity to disseminate project outputs to local decision-makers
