B. PROFILE, FIELDS OF ACTIVITY AND TARGET GROUPS

Type of organisation	Civil society organisation (association)
Organisation profile	Accordia Initiative is a civil society association based in Požarevac, Serbia. Its work is centred on the connection between dialogue, cooperation, education and sustainable social development. The organisation's statutory objectives bring together education and lifelong learning, human rights and the rule of law, democratic participation, dialogue and mediation, digital and media literacy, culture, social cohesion and international cooperation. This framework is intended for practical work with people and communities: developing knowledge and skills, supporting informed and responsible participation, strengthening communication across differences, and creating opportunities for cooperation at local, national and international level.

Main fields of activity	• Education, lifelong learning and development of knowledge, including formal and non-formal learning, as well as adult education; • Development of children and young people, youth participation and active citizenship; • Human rights, democracy, rule of law, equality and responsible civic participation; • Dialogue, mediation, social cohesion, non-violent communication and conflict prevention; • Digital skills, digital literacy, media and information literacy, critical thinking and responsible communication; • Culture, language, cultural heritage and intercultural learning; • Social inclusion, equal opportunities, sustainable social development and community resilience; • International cooperation, exchange of knowledge and good practice, and institutional networking.
Target groups	Children, young people and adults; learners and participants in formal, non-formal and lifelong learning; educators and other professionals; citizens and local communities; civil society actors; relevant public, educational, cultural and other institutions; and people with fewer opportunities, depending on the project context.
C. ORGANISATIONAL CAPACITY, EXPERIENCE AND COOPERATION
Team expertise and capacity	Accordia Initiative brings together professionals with extensive experience across law and economics; preschool, primary and secondary education; language and literature; mathematics; computer science and informatics; librarianship; electrical engineering and information technology; education advisory work; and culture and cultural education. Taken together, this provides a multidisciplinary base for education across age groups, lifelong and adult learning, work with children and young people, pedagogy and non-formal learning, language and communication, digital and STEM competencies, culture and cultural heritage, legal and institutional matters, human rights and the rule of law, socio-economic issues, institutional cooperation and community-oriented learning.
Activities and methods	• Education, training, workshops, seminars and capacity-building in formal, non-formal and lifelong-learning settings; • Development and adaptation of educational methodologies, learning materials, toolkits, guides and digital resources; • Research, surveys, needs assessments, evidence-informed analysis, monitoring and evaluation; • Local pilot activities, testing of methods and work with participants, communities and relevant stakeholders; • Dialogue, mediation, consultation, participatory processes, public discussions and awareness activities; • Digital, media, cultural and educational content and activities; • Community outreach and cooperation with educational and cultural institutions, civil society organisations and public institutions; • Mobility and exchange activities, participant preparation, study visits, peer learning and international networking; • Project communication, dissemination and practical use of project results.

Background and experience	Established in June 2026, Accordia Initiative draws on the long-standing professional experience of its multidisciplinary team in education, law and institutional affairs, digital and technical fields, culture and other areas relevant to its statutory objectives.
European and international cooperation	Accordia Initiative is interested in Erasmus+, CERV and other compatible European and international cooperation where its statutory objectives and professional capacities provide a clear fit. Depending on the project, the organisation can contribute to needs assessment, participant and stakeholder outreach, educational and lifelong-learning activities, local implementation and piloting, development or adaptation of content and methods, institutional and community engagement, mobility and exchange activities, communication and dissemination, and project design, monitoring and evaluation.
