PROJECT AIMS

A large number of young people in Europe finishing higher education in humanities (psychology, sociology, political science, international relations, etc.) face the problem of employment and the realization of their potential. Studying at the University for 3-5 years do not give 100% guarantees to be claimed. The reasons for this are several.

1. Universities are based on theoretical work remote from practice.
2. The knowledge given by the University, falls far short of the reality and requirements of the market specialties.
3. Students are not ready for real work and do not have the practice of taking responsibility.

All these disadvantages can be solved by EVS. It can give and work practices, training, and taking responsibility, and most importantly - to test and implement their knowledge in practice. EVS can act as an intermediary between the university and employment.

The main objectives of project

Development and support of awareness among young people the importance of higher education in the humanities and connection formal+nonformal+distance education
