About the Project

WHAT determines what border is? WHAT is migration? HOW is it that people who breathe the same air, drink the same water and say the same words can be separated? Forget about everything, WHAT even is a border? In a world where technology connects us better than ever before and where traveling has become a necessity more than a luxury HOW IS IT POSSIBLE that we still strive to build 'great walls'?

Migration is the case of people leaving their hometown for various reasons whether it is desired or undesired. Immigrant is a person who has lived in a foreign country for more than a year. Refugee is a person who was forced to flee their country for 'well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion'.

Even though borders in our minds has been greatly removed with the peak of globalism in our modern world, physical borders set by countries still remain the same. Limitations of these borders are left for immigrants which deals the biggest blow for a dream of a better life. And the lucky ones who achieve to cross the borders is left with the task of removing the borders inside the minds of their own and their community's.

With the motto 'unity in diversity' inspiring us, we take courage to understand and overcome these borders. In our project, we aim to study what borders mean both for European youth and for immigrants and strive to find a common ground. This is why we chose Thracia, the gateway and the heart of the Balkans where borders has changed every so often and people moved in and out of these new borders. Our goal is to experience what it means to be a immigrant in a bordered world by non-formal education tactics like creative drama, outdoor cinema, sport activities and interactive communication and to gain new perspectives.

About us

INCAD (Institute for Cultural Approach in Diplomacy) is a platform which was founded in 2018. The platform has the ambitious aim of becoming an international organization for cultural studies among younger generations. We aim to increase the interest and understanding of what culture means in regards to diplomacy for a better international community.

We believe in the importance of diversity and understanding them so we want to realize projects containing non-formal education methods and academical researches. Hence we are limited by our size and budget, we welcome cooperations and sponsorships.
