All in all, İstanbul Avrupa Araştırmaları Derneği (IAAD) aims at readdressing Youth needs through inclusive training with a set of activities aiming at tackling Youth current issues within a long term strategy (2017-2021). Such issues are namely employment, active citizenship, human rights and social changes.

IAAD is a not-for-profit Youth-oriented leading research and technology organisation located in Istanbul, Turkey, at the interface between science, society, and a series of economic sectors. We may engage as non-key expert in surveys and research developments in a series of fields in cooperation with research institutes, universities, enterprises and other related bodies.

IAAD addresses and develops more specifically in global education (GE) with a focus on the interpretation of the guiding principles from the Council of Europe, which have been identified as specifically appropriate for the communities we are working with, and organised by level of importance by all the stakeholders involved.

Key thematic addressed are stereotype, gender, prejudice, racism and active citizenship.

IAAD engages specifically in the above thematic per the European Youth Strategy crystallised around the 11 European Youth Goals. In each specific arena of these goals, IAAD fosters project-based developments driven by R&D, GE and training, global citizenship, social innovation and entrepreneurship, addressing EU Societal Challenges.

IAAD promotes GE and training initiatives for Youth supported by non-formal and informal learning (NFIL), ECVET-based apprenticeships and transnational learning mobilities for Youth. IAAD also activates participative dialogue between communities and policy-makers, develops Culture, Arts and Heritage initiatives, Sports and leisure activities, Community Cooperatives development, Social Entrepreneurship, and encourages a variety of grass-root initiatives aiming at fostering Social Entrepreneurship, pluralism, non-discrimination, tolerance, justice, solidarity and equality between women and men, globally equity and inclusion.

We especially develop on entrepreneurial competences via our "Entrepreneurial Development Training Programme", encompassing:

- 1) need analysis and orientation session (inspiration, vision and definition)
- 2) business basics: from the idea to the product/service
- 3) key competences: creative processes, digital, managerial, economics and finance, accounting and cooperative work
- 4) competences (knowledge, skills and responsibility/autonomy)
- 5) strategy and development planning, risk management (logical framework approach)
- 5) financing and funding
- 6) mentoring programme
- 7) digital transformation processes
- 8) circular economy models
- 9) marketing and sales
- 10) contractual public private partnerships

Societal challenges – IAAD promotes initiatives addressing H2020 Societal Challenges in the fields of Social Innovation Research, Socio-Economic Sciences and Humanities and Inclusive, Innovative and Reflective Societies (IIRS). The main aim of IAAD's engagement in SSH initiatives is to raise-awareness on innovations as key drivers to strengthen social cohesion and lower social inequalities.

IAAD promotes specific inclusion programmes targeting the migrant population. Initiatives aim at assisting local and regional communities to increase employability with tailored learning programmes, innovative community development models (community cooperatives), promoting and supporting the capitalization of experiences from elderly generations, linking them with Youth and the ICT sphere.

Our organisation develops a series of initiatives to support active citizen's and Youth's access to finance through a cooperative model in which each cooperant act as an investor, inspired BY similar models conceptualized in water.org (Gary White) and 826 National (Dave Eggers).

IAAD foster ICT-based development and implementation of a variety of conceptual approaches such as Circular Economy and Bio Economy, involving renewable energies, Environment conservation and protection, sustainable development programmes, agriculture and natural resources conservation. ICT-based approaches and tools are key features in all IAAD's initiatives, involving basic tools such as the Internet (Moodle, YouTube, Skype, Google Tools, Mobile Applications), and the internet of Things (connected object).

All IAAD's development programmes are design with a Logical Framework Approach (LFA), and Result-Oriented Monitoring (ROM), using a set of tools and assigned staffs described in the "Project Management and Implementation Handbook" (PMIH). The PMIH encompasses the following key features for evaluation of quality levels: 1) the process; 2) the results; 3) the participants; 4) the dissemination; 5) the impact.
