1.	Abstract Transhumanism is a social topic which affects all areas of our lives and will become increasingly relevant in the future. Information about transhumanism (TH) is therefore a prerequisite for the participation of stakeholders. The socio-cultural education project (with the working title: "Transhumanism & the real challenges for youth") will discuss the TH and its impact broadly and with international experts (from the field of education and social work). In a one-week workshop (in Switzerland), the topic will be discussed and opinions will be collected. Furthermore, answers to open questions will be searched for and the results will be made available.
2.	Project justification (Adapted to Alex, Willener & Annina Friz (eds.) (2019): Integral Project Methodology, p.55 ff.)
2.1	Information In this new and complex topic, the focus is on raising awareness/understanding. For this purpose, professionals (from education and social work) who work with youth and young adults are invited to participate. The project participants will spend five days examining the various areas of society that are affected by TH but above all on young people and young adults. During the workshop, the compiled results will be discussed as well as the insights gained from the specialised presentations (from theology & philosophy as well as education and social work). In a further step, the participants should become active themselves and get to the bottom of philosophical questions that possibly go hand in hand with trans- or posthumanism.

	Since the topic is very young, those questions that arise and cannot yet be answered or can only be answered inadequately will be collected (for research purposes).
