Training Course- "Blueprint"

Scout unit Mirko Mileski, North Macedonia

What is it!?

Blueprint is a training course for youth workers who are working with youngsters who can be considered as youngsters coming from a vulnerable background. Specifically, youngsters who are long-term unemployed, drop-outs, low education level, coming from rural areas, living in poverty, having a difficult situation in their families, etc. Through the training course, the participating youth workers will have the chance to define and finetune their own method on working with their target group, expanding their mentoring skills, gaining new tools and practices. As well, they will get a new perspective on how to increase employability of their target group and empower them to go back in the labour market

Erasmus+

How!?

Each youth worker will have a meeting with your organization in order to plan together on what the learning goals and needs are for both the youth worker and the sending organization. You will meet and agree on how the learnt material in the training can be implemented for both, and who will do what during the activities after the training in order to implement the learnt material.

Before the training starts, we will send to each participant a form in which he will describe his experience, target group and what he would like to improve and bring in their daily work; this way he will gain a clearer view on the context, situation and target groups in which and for who he is operating.

The training will be delivered in a non-formal setting and the focus will be on creating a personalized methodology in working with youngsters with fewer opportunities, while gaining new skills and competences on how to better include youngsters in society and the labour market and learn new tools and practices on working with the target group through practical activities.

After the training, the youth workers will have their own methodology on working with people with fewer opportunities, design a methodology guideline and have sessions with the target group with the purpose of including them into society and labor market.

For who?

We are looking for people who are part of an organization whose focus is to engage youngsters with fewer opportunities in society and empower them to go back into the labor market. The training will host in the end 30 participants from 10 different organizations.

When and Where?

The training will take place in August 2024 in a training facility in Struga, North Macedonia. The participation fee is €20 and the duration of the training is 6 days, excluding travelling days.
